Articles sent outside the deadline set by UNICORP or sent outside the rules will not be considered for review and evaluation.

The Editorial and Scientific Board might contact the author whose article contain only small incompatibilities with ABNT rules, in order that he may correct them in a 10 (ten) day deadline counted since initial communication.

The review, evaluation and selection process of the articles will be divided in two stages. In the first phase, it will be checked if the article fits the editorial line of the "ENTRE ASPAS" 9th edition. If approved, the second stage begins with an analyses by an antiplagiarism software; then anonymous reviewer will make his qualitative evaluation, considering: a) scientific significance; b) originality; c) theoretical and practical foundation; d) critical aspects and appropriateness to the journal's editorial line; e) scientific-technical accuracy of the featured content. In this second stage, the cutoff point will be 60% (sixty per cent) of the maximum possible grade. If there is a negative review, the article will be sent to another anonymous reviewer, according to the double-blind peer review system.

At the end of the evaluation, the reviewer will conclude for the approval, approval with mandatory corrections or rejection of the article.

After the report of approval and/or approval with mandatory corrections, the article will be sent to the Scientific and Editorial Board for publishing selection.

The articles selected by the Board that do not get published in the 9th edition of "ENTRE ASPAS" will remain in the UNICORP database for future publications.

The Scientific and Editorial Board will not return the articles received to the authors.

If the article is rejected by the antiplagiarism software, the Scientific and Editorial Board will request further information from the author.

Exceptionally, invitations to publish may be sent exclusively by the Scientific and Editorial Board. Those articles will not undergo the procedure of analyses, review, and selection.

There will not be the right to appeal against the final decision of any stage.
